How to Get Monetized on TikTok: Requirements, Creator Rewards and How to Earn

Updated at November 2, 2026

Depending on your location and eligibility, TikTok can help you earn through creator reward programs, brand sponsorships, affiliate content, LIVE gifts, and product sales.

If you are creating videos consistently and wondering how to get monetized on TikTok, there are several ways to turn your content and audience into income. TikTok monetization is not limited to one program. Depending on your location, account, content, and eligibility, you may have access to creator rewards, LIVE features, brand collaborations, affiliate opportunities, TikTok Shop features, and other ways to earn.

One important thing to understand is that TikTok monetization requirements are not identical for every feature. A creator may qualify for one monetization option while not yet qualifying for another.

This guide explains how TikTok monetization works, what creators should know about the Creator Rewards Program, how to prepare an account for monetization, and other practical ways to make money from TikTok.

What Does TikTok Monetization Mean?

TikTok monetization means using your TikTok content, audience, or platform features to generate revenue.

There are two broad categories.

TikTok's Built-In Monetization

These are features provided directly through TikTok, subject to eligibility and regional availability.

Examples can include:

* Creator Rewards Program
* LIVE-related monetization

* Gifts
* Subscription features
* Shopping-related features

Monetization Outside TikTok

You can also use TikTok to generate income through:

* Sponsorships
* Affiliate marketing
* UGC
* Products
* Digital products
* Freelance services
* Coaching
* Website traffic

This distinction is important because you don't necessarily have to wait for one particular TikTok program before exploring legitimate ways to earn.

How to Get Monetized on TikTok

The exact process depends on which monetization feature you want to use.

A general approach is:

1. Create an eligible TikTok account.
2. Publish original content consistently.
3. Follow TikTok's community and monetization policies.
4. Build genuine engagement and an audience.
5. Check the monetization options available in your account.
6. Review the requirements for the specific program.
7. Apply or activate the feature when eligible.
8. Continue monitoring your account and earnings.

TikTok can update eligibility rules and available features, so the monetization section inside your account should be treated as the most relevant place to check your current options.

What Is the TikTok Creator Rewards Program?

The Creator Rewards Program is TikTok's creator monetization program for eligible creators in supported markets.

It replaced the earlier TikTok Creator Fund in many markets.

The program is designed around rewarding eligible creators for qualifying original content under TikTok's current rules.

However, simply uploading videos and receiving views does not automatically mean that every creator or every view generates revenue.

Eligibility and qualifying-view rules matter.

TikTok Creator Fund vs Creator Rewards Program

You may still see the phrase TikTok Creator Fund in older articles, videos, and social media discussions.

The Creator Fund was an earlier TikTok creator payment program.

TikTok has since introduced the Creator Rewards Program in supported markets, making many older Creator Fund guides outdated.

This is why you should be careful when reading old articles that quote historical payment rates or requirements.

A monetization requirement from a previous year may no longer apply.

What Are the TikTok Creator Rewards Requirements?

Requirements can vary by market and may change as TikTok updates the program.

Creators should check the current eligibility information shown by TikTok before making decisions based on a specific follower or view threshold.

Generally, eligibility can involve factors such as:

* Minimum age
* Account status
* Follower requirements
* Recent video views
* Eligible location
* Original content
* Compliance with TikTok policies

Meeting one requirement does not necessarily mean you automatically qualify for every monetization feature.

Different programs can have different rules.

Why Location Matters for TikTok Monetization

TikTok monetization features are not necessarily available everywhere.

A feature available to creators in one country may not be available to creators in another.

This is particularly important if you search for terms such as:

creator rewards program in Philippines

or

TikTok monetization requirements in another country.

An article describing the requirements for creators in the United States should not automatically be treated as a guide for creators in the Philippines, India, or another market.

Always verify the feature and eligibility requirements applicable to your location.

How Many Followers Do You Need to Get Monetized on TikTok?

There isn't one universal follower requirement for every TikTok monetization method.

Some platform programs have specific eligibility thresholds.

Other ways of making money don't depend directly on reaching a particular follower count.

For example, a creator may potentially earn through:

* UGC
* Affiliate marketing
* Freelancing
* Sponsorships
* Product sales

before building a huge following.

This is why asking only "How many followers do I need?" can give an incomplete picture.

How Many Views Do You Need to Make Money on TikTok?

The answer depends on the monetization method.

Creator programs can have specific requirements involving recent qualified views.

Sponsorships depend more on the value of your audience and campaign.

Affiliate marketing depends on conversions.

A service business depends on leads and customers.

For example, 100,000 views could generate very different results for two creators because their audiences and monetization models are different.

1. Creator Rewards Program

For eligible creators in supported markets, the Creator Rewards Program can provide a direct platform-based monetization opportunity.

Creators should focus on:

* Original videos
* High-quality content
* Audience retention
* Consistent publishing
* Following TikTok's rules

The program should not be viewed as a guaranteed payment for every view.

TikTok determines eligible content and views according to its applicable program rules.

2. TikTok LIVE Monetization

LIVE is another potential revenue source.

Creators can interact with viewers in real time and, where available and eligible, use monetization features associated with LIVE.

Popular LIVE formats include:

* Gaming streams
* Q&A sessions
* Tutorials
* Product demonstrations
* Music
* Educational discussions
* Entertainment

A strong LIVE session usually has a clear purpose.

Instead of simply going live and waiting for viewers, prepare topics or activities that encourage people to stay and participate.

3. Brand Sponsorships

Brand deals can become an important income source as your audience grows.

A company might pay you to:

* Review a product
* Demonstrate an app
* Mention a service
* Create a tutorial
* Produce a sponsored story
* Publish a campaign video

Brands may look at more than follower count.

They can consider:

* Engagement
* Niche
* Audience demographics
* Video quality
* Content style
* Previous campaign performance

This means a focused account can sometimes be commercially useful even without a massive audience.

4. Affiliate Marketing

Affiliate marketing is another way to make money from TikTok.

You recommend a product and receive a commission when a qualifying purchase is made through your referral.

For example, a technology creator could make videos about:

* Laptop accessories
* Software
* Microphones
* Keyboards
* Productivity tools

A cooking creator could recommend:

* Kitchen equipment
* Cookware
* Food preparation tools

The strongest affiliate content usually helps the viewer make a decision instead of simply saying "buy this."

5. Sell Your Own Products

If you already operate a business, TikTok can become an additional marketing channel.

You can create videos showing:

* How the product works
* How it is made
* Customer use cases
* Product comparisons
* New launches
* Frequently asked questions

Instead of creating a separate advertisement for every video, make useful content around problems your product solves.

6. Sell Digital Products

Digital products can also work well with educational TikTok accounts.

Potential products include:

* Ebooks
* Templates
* Checklists
* Guides
* Presets
* Planners
* Worksheets
* Educational resources

For example, if your TikTok account teaches budgeting, you might eventually offer a budgeting spreadsheet or detailed financial planning template.

The free content builds awareness while the paid resource provides a deeper solution.

7. Offer Services

TikTok can help freelancers attract potential customers.

You could promote services such as:

* SEO
* Web design
* Video editing
* Graphic design
* Copywriting
* Social media management
* Photography
* Tutoring
* Consulting

Instead of constantly saying that you are available for work, demonstrate your skill.

For example, a video editor can show a raw clip followed by the edited version.

A designer can show a logo design process.

An SEO professional can explain a common website mistake.

This gives potential customers evidence of what you can actually do.

8. Become a UGC Creator

UGC is another option for creators who enjoy producing short-form videos.

You can create sample videos for products and approach companies that need social media content.

UGC can include:

* Product demonstrations
* Unboxing videos
* Tutorials
* Voiceovers
* Testimonials
* Lifestyle videos

The advantage is that your value can come from your ability to create content rather than simply having a huge follower count.

9. Build an Audience for Another Platform

TikTok can also work as the top of a larger content funnel.

You can direct interested viewers toward:

* YouTube
* Website
* Newsletter
* Online store
* Community
* Course
* Service page

For example, a creator could publish a short explanation on TikTok and provide a longer tutorial elsewhere.

This gives the creator another place to build an audience and potentially monetize it.

10. Use TikTok to Build a Personal Brand

A personal brand can become valuable independently of TikTok's direct monetization programs.

Your TikTok content can establish expertise around a particular topic.

For example:

Fitness → coaching

Technology → consulting

Education → courses

Design → freelance projects

Cooking → digital recipes or products

Business → consulting or services

The audience may initially discover you through TikTok, but the relationship can eventually support other parts of your business.

How to Prepare Your TikTok Account for Monetization

If monetization is one of your long-term goals, start preparing before you become eligible.

Choose a Clear Niche

A focused account makes it easier to understand who your audience is.

Create Original Content

Avoid building your entire account around copied clips or material you don't have the right to use.

Maintain Consistency

A consistent publishing schedule can help you build a larger content library.

Improve Video Quality

Good lighting, clear audio, strong editing, and readable captions can improve the viewing experience.

Follow Platform Rules

Policy violations can interfere with monetization opportunities.

Study Analytics

Look at which topics generate:

* Views
* Watch time
* Engagement
* Profile visits
* Followers

Use that information to improve future content.

What Kind of TikTok Videos Make Money?

There isn't one universal video format that guarantees income.

However, certain types of content naturally connect with monetization.

Product Tutorials

These can support affiliate sales or brand deals.

Educational Videos

These can help establish expertise and promote services or digital products.

Product Reviews

These can work with affiliate marketing or sponsorships.

Problem-Solving Videos

These can attract viewers who have a specific need.

Entertainment

Large reach can help build an audience that can later support different monetization methods.

Behind-the-Scenes Content

This can make businesses and products more relatable.

Can You Make Money on TikTok Without Going Viral?

Yes, viral reach is not the only path to monetization.

A smaller audience can be valuable when it is highly relevant.

Consider a creator who teaches a specific professional skill.

A video might receive fewer views than a general entertainment video, but the viewers could include people who are actively looking for that skill or service.

In this situation, a small number of qualified leads can potentially be more useful than a large number of unrelated views.

Can You Make Money on TikTok Without Showing Your Face?

Yes.

Faceless TikTok formats can include:

* Screen recordings
* Voiceovers
* Gaming footage
* Tutorials
* Animations
* Text-based videos
* Product demonstrations
* Hands-only videos
* Slideshows with original narration

For example, software tutorials can be created entirely from screen recordings.

A gaming creator can use gameplay footage and commentary.

An educational creator can use graphics and narration.

How to Increase Your Chances of Monetizing TikTok

There is no guaranteed formula, but several practices can make your account more prepared for monetization.

Make the First Few Seconds Useful

Give viewers a reason to continue watching.

Solve Specific Problems

Specific topics often make it easier to attract a relevant audience.

Create Series

A recurring series can encourage viewers to return.

Use Clear Calls to Action

Tell viewers what they can do next when appropriate.

Experiment With Formats

Try tutorials, reviews, stories, comparisons, and demonstrations.

Review Your Analytics

Don't judge your strategy based on one video.

Look for patterns across multiple posts.

TikTok Monetization Mistakes to Avoid

Buying Followers

Artificial followers may not provide meaningful engagement and can create an unhealthy audience profile.

Copying Viral Videos

A viral format can inspire an idea, but your content should remain original and useful.

Promising Guaranteed Earnings

No legitimate TikTok strategy can guarantee a specific income.

Ignoring Your Audience

A large audience isn't useful if the content you're monetizing has nothing to do with what followers care about.

Depending on One Income Source

As your account grows, consider building multiple revenue channels.

Following Outdated Requirements

TikTok programs and eligibility rules can change.

Always verify current requirements before applying.

TikTok Monetization for Beginners

If you are completely new, don't try to implement every monetization method at once.

A simple plan is enough.

Month 1: Build the Content Habit

Choose a niche and start publishing consistently.

Month 2: Study the Audience

Identify your strongest topics and formats.

Month 3: Test Monetization

Depending on your niche, test an affiliate product, service, UGC offer, or another appropriate method.

Later: Add More Revenue Streams

Once you understand your audience, consider sponsorships, products, digital resources, or additional platform features.

The objective is to build an audience first and then match monetization to that audience.

Frequently Asked Questions

How do I get monetized on TikTok?
Check the monetization options available in your TikTok account and review the current eligibility requirements for each feature. Continue creating original content and maintaining an account that follows TikTok's policies.

How much does TikTok pay for 1,000 views?
There is no single universal rate that applies to every TikTok creator or every view. Earnings depend on the applicable monetization program and whether views qualify under its rules.

How many followers do you need to get monetized on TikTok?
There is no single follower requirement for every monetization method. TikTok's different features can have different eligibility requirements, while methods such as services and UGC may work without relying on a specific follower threshold.

Is the TikTok Creator Fund still available?
The TikTok Creator Fund was an earlier monetization program. TikTok has introduced the Creator Rewards Program in supported markets, so older Creator Fund information may not describe the current system.

Can small TikTok accounts make money?
Yes. Smaller accounts can explore options such as UGC, affiliate marketing, freelance services, products, and other methods depending on their niche and audience.

Can I make money on TikTok without showing my face?
Yes. Tutorials, gaming videos, screen recordings, voiceovers, animations, product demonstrations, and other faceless formats can be used to build an audience.

Can I make money on TikTok without going viral?
Yes. A highly targeted audience can be valuable even when individual videos do not reach millions of views.

Does TikTok pay for every view?
No. Views are not automatically equivalent to monetized views. Eligibility, program rules, content requirements, and other factors determine whether particular views can contribute to earnings through a specific TikTok program.

Final Thoughts

Understanding how to get monetized on TikTok starts with recognizing that monetization is bigger than one creator program.

The Creator Rewards Program can be one option for eligible creators, but it is not the only way to earn. Sponsorships, affiliate marketing, UGC, products, digital products, services, LIVE features, and traffic to other platforms can all play a role.

If you're starting today, focus first on creating original content and building a clearly defined audience. Then choose monetization methods that naturally fit your niche.

Instead of chasing a specific follower number or assuming that viral views automatically equal income, build an audience that trusts your content and gives you multiple ways to create value.
