How to Make Money from TikTok: 10 Ways to Monetize Your Videos and Followers

Updated at November 2, 2026

Quick Answer: TikTok earnings can come from several sources, including advertiser-funded creator programs, brand deals, affiliate sales, LIVE gifts, and direct product promotion.

TikTok has become one of the biggest platforms for discovering short-form content, but it can also be used to build a real income stream. If you've been searching for how to make money from TikTok, there are several ways to turn your videos, followers, skills, and audience into potential income.

Some creators make money directly through TikTok's available monetization programs. Others use the platform to promote products, attract clients, work with brands, or build businesses outside TikTok.

You don't necessarily need millions of followers to get started. What matters is having content that attracts the right audience and a monetization strategy that fits your niche.

In this guide, we'll cover 10 practical ways to make money from TikTok and explain how beginners can start turning their audience into income.

1. Join the TikTok Creator Rewards Program

One of the direct ways eligible creators can potentially earn money from TikTok is through the Creator Rewards Program.

The program is available only in eligible markets and has specific requirements. TikTok can also change its eligibility rules and monetization policies over time.

If the program is available for your account, you can check TikTok Studio or the creator monetization section for current details.

Generally, creators should focus on:

* Original content
* Consistent publishing
* Genuine engagement
* Following TikTok's Community Guidelines
* Maintaining an account in good standing

It's also important to understand that total video views don't necessarily equal qualified views for a creator rewards program.

What happened to the TikTok Creator Fund?

The TikTok Creator Fund was an earlier creator monetization program.

TikTok has introduced the Creator Rewards Program in eligible markets as a newer creator-reward option.

Because programs and requirements can change, always check the current information available through TikTok rather than relying on outdated eligibility numbers.

2. Make Money Through Brand Sponsorships

Brand deals are another common way to make money from TikTok.

Companies can pay creators to feature their products or services in videos.

A sponsorship could involve:

* Product demonstrations
* Reviews
* Tutorials
* Brand mentions
* Sponsored entertainment
* Product integrations
* Campaign videos

For example, a gaming creator might partner with a gaming accessory company.

A beauty creator could work with a skincare brand.

A technology creator could feature an app or electronic accessory.

Do you need a huge following?

Not necessarily.

Brands may consider several factors, including:

* Audience relevance
* Engagement
* Average views
* Content quality
* Niche
* Location
* Follower count

A smaller account with a highly targeted audience can have value because its followers may be closely connected to the brand's potential customers.

3. Use Affiliate Marketing

Affiliate marketing is another way to make money from TikTok without relying entirely on TikTok's own payment programs.

The basic process is:

Create useful content → recommend a relevant product → viewer clicks → qualifying purchase → commission

For example, a technology creator could create:

"5 useful accessories for your home office."

The creator can demonstrate each product and provide an appropriate affiliate option where available.

Affiliate marketing can work well in niches such as:

* Technology
* Gaming
* Beauty
* Fitness
* Fashion
* Home improvement
* Cooking
* Travel
* Education

The key is to make the recommendation relevant to the viewer.

4. Sell Your Own Products

If you have a physical product, TikTok can help you introduce it to potential customers.

Products can include:

* Clothing

* Accessories
* Handmade items
* Artwork
* Beauty products
* Home products
* Custom merchandise

Instead of creating repetitive advertisements, make content around the product.

For example, a creator selling handmade jewelry could show how each piece is created.

A clothing seller could make styling videos.

A food business could show how its products are prepared.

This makes the content more interesting while still introducing the product.

5. Sell Digital Products

You don't need a physical inventory to build a product business.

Digital products can be delivered online and can include:

* Ebooks
* Templates
* Checklists
* Planners
* Guides
* Study resources
* Design assets
* Presets
* Online courses

Suppose you create TikTok videos about productivity.

You could share free productivity tips and then offer a detailed downloadable planner for viewers who want additional resources.

The TikTok content attracts attention while the digital product creates a potential source of revenue.

6. Offer Services to Your TikTok Audience

If you have a professional skill, TikTok can function as a portfolio.

Instead of simply telling people what you do, demonstrate it through short videos.

You could offer:

* SEO services
* Website development
* Graphic design
* Video editing
* Writing
* Photography
* Social media management
* Consulting
* Tutoring
* Coaching

For example, a web designer can create a video showing how they improve a website homepage.

A video editor can show a before-and-after transformation.

An SEO professional can explain common website mistakes.

People who find the content useful may visit your profile and contact you.

In this situation, TikTok generates a potential client rather than a direct creator payment.

7. Make Money With TikTok LIVE

LIVE content provides another monetization opportunity for eligible creators.

Depending on the account and region, TikTok may provide features such as virtual gifts and other LIVE tools.

Creators use LIVE for:

* Gaming
* Q&A sessions
* Tutorials
* Music
* Interviews
* Discussions
* Product demonstrations
* Educational content

A good LIVE session should have a reason for viewers to participate.

For example:

"LIVE: I'll answer your questions about starting a TikTok channel."

This is more specific than simply announcing that you're going LIVE.

8. Create UGC for Businesses

UGC stands for user-generated content.

Companies may pay creators to produce short-form videos that demonstrate or promote their products.

Examples include:

* Unboxing videos
* Product tutorials
* Testimonials
* Demonstrations
* Lifestyle videos
* Product comparisons
* Short advertisements

UGC is different from traditional influencer marketing because the company may primarily be interested in your ability to create effective content.

You may not need a massive following to get started.

Create several high-quality sample videos and use them as a portfolio when approaching businesses or UGC opportunities.

9. Use TikTok to Promote a Website or Online Business

TikTok can also act as a traffic source for another online property.

For example:

TikTok → website → affiliate income

or:

TikTok → website → products

or:

TikTok → website → services

Suppose you run a technology website.

You can publish short tutorials on TikTok and direct interested viewers toward longer guides.

A recipe creator can publish quick cooking videos and send viewers to a website for complete recipes.

A business consultant can use educational TikTok videos to attract visitors to a service page.

This approach allows TikTok to become part of a larger business model.

10. Build and Monetize a Personal Brand

A personal brand can create multiple income opportunities.

Instead of creating random videos, build recognition around a specific subject.

For example:

Fitness content → fitness audience → coaching

Technology content → tech audience → affiliate products

Education content → student audience → tutoring or courses

Business content → professional audience → consulting

Beauty content → beauty audience → sponsorships and affiliate products

Once people associate your account with a particular topic, it becomes easier to introduce relevant products and services.

How to Make Money on TikTok With a Small Following

One of the biggest misconceptions about TikTok is that you need millions of followers before you can earn money.

That's not necessarily true.

Different monetization methods require different types of audiences.

For example, a TikTok account with 5,000 followers focused entirely on video editing could potentially generate:

* Editing clients
* Software affiliate sales
* UGC opportunities
* Sponsorships
* Digital product sales

The audience is small compared with a major entertainment account, but it has a clear commercial interest.

This is why audience relevance can be more important than simply chasing follower numbers.

How Do You Make Money on TikTok From Views?

Views can create monetization opportunities, but views alone don't automatically guarantee income.

For eligible creator programs, TikTok determines qualifying views according to the applicable program rules.

Outside direct creator payments, views can generate:

* Website visitors
* Product buyers
* Affiliate clicks
* Client inquiries
* Sponsorship opportunities
* New followers

Think of a TikTok view as attention.

Your monetization strategy determines what happens after someone watches.

How to Get Monetized on TikTok

If your main goal is direct TikTok monetization, start by checking the options available in TikTok Studio.

A general process is:

1. Choose a clear niche.
2. Create original videos.
3. Publish consistently.
4. Build genuine engagement.
5. Follow TikTok's rules.
6. Check the monetization features available to your account.
7. Review the current eligibility requirements.
8. Apply when eligible.

The exact requirements depend on the program and your location.

There is no single set of rules that applies to every TikTok monetization feature.

Can You Make Money on TikTok Without Being Monetized?

Yes.

This is particularly important for beginners.

You can potentially make money through:

* Affiliate marketing
* Sponsorships

* Products
* Digital products
* Services
* UGC
* Business leads

For example, a freelance photographer could post photography tips on TikTok.

A viewer discovers the account, likes the work, and books a photography session.

TikTok has generated income even though the creator didn't receive a direct payment for the video view.

How to Make Money on TikTok Videos

A useful way to plan your content is to give different videos different jobs.

Educational videos

Build expertise and trust.

Tutorial videos

Answer specific questions and attract search-driven viewers.

Product videos

Introduce products or affiliate recommendations.

Portfolio videos

Demonstrate professional skills.

Entertainment videos

Increase reach and audience growth.

Behind-the-scenes videos

Build a stronger connection with followers.

This gives your account a broader content strategy instead of turning every post into an advertisement.

How Much Money Can You Make From TikTok?

TikTok income varies significantly from creator to creator.

Potential earnings can depend on:

* Qualified views
* Audience location
* Engagement
* Niche
* Sponsorship rates
* Affiliate conversions
* Product sales
* Service pricing
* UGC agreements
* LIVE activity

There is no universal amount that applies to a specific follower count.

A creator with fewer followers can sometimes generate more business revenue than a larger account if the audience has stronger commercial intent.

TikTok Creator Rewards Program in the Philippines

Creators searching for the Creator Rewards Program in the Philippines should check TikTok Studio for the latest monetization options available to their specific accounts.

TikTok programs can have different availability and requirements depending on location.

If you're researching eligibility, avoid assuming that rules from the United States or another country automatically apply to creators in the Philippines.

How to Make Money From TikTok Without Showing Your Face

You don't necessarily have to become the face of your account.

Some possible formats include:

Screen recordings

Useful for:

* Apps
* Software
* Gaming
* Tutorials

Voice-over videos

Explain a topic while showing relevant footage or graphics.

Hands-only content

Works well for:

* Cooking
* Crafts
* Drawing
* Product demonstrations

Animations and graphics

Useful for educational and informational content.

Product-focused videos

Show the product rather than yourself.

The important factor is still the quality and originality of the content.

7 Tips for Making Money on TikTok

1. Choose one clear niche

A focused topic makes it easier to build a relevant audience.

2. Understand your viewers

Learn what questions they ask and what content they enjoy.

3. Create strong hooks

Tell viewers quickly why they should keep watching.

4. Don't rely entirely on trends

Use trends when they make sense for your niche, but don't build your entire strategy around them.

5. Track your analytics

Monitor watch time, engagement, shares, comments, and profile visits.

6. Build trust before selling

An audience is more likely to respond to recommendations when they trust the creator.

7. Diversify your income

Consider multiple monetization methods rather than relying on a single TikTok feature.

Common TikTok Monetization Mistakes

Avoid these common mistakes:

* Buying followers
* Buying fake views
* Reposting copyrighted videos
* Copying other creators
* Making unrealistic income promises
* Promoting irrelevant products
* Posting too many advertisements
* Ignoring sponsorship disclosures
* Violating TikTok's policies
* Depending on one viral video

A sustainable TikTok strategy is usually built around consistent content and audience trust.

Frequently Asked Questions

Check TikTok Studio for monetization programs available to your account and review the current eligibility requirements for your region and the specific program.

Does TikTok pay for every view?
No. Direct creator programs have specific rules about qualifying views and rewards. A normal TikTok view does not automatically mean that you receive payment.

What is the TikTok Creator Fund?
The Creator Fund was an earlier creator monetization program. TikTok has introduced the Creator Rewards Program in eligible markets as a newer creator-reward option.

Can I make money from TikTok videos without selling anything?
Yes. Depending on your account and location, you can potentially earn through creator programs, LIVE features, or brand partnerships without directly selling your own product.

How can beginners make money on TikTok?
Beginners can start by building a focused audience and exploring options such as affiliate marketing, UGC, freelance services, digital products, sponsorships, or other relevant business opportunities.

Final Thoughts

Learning how to make money from TikTok doesn't mean relying on a single monetization feature.

Creators can explore the Creator Rewards Program, brand partnerships, affiliate marketing, products, services, LIVE, UGC, websites, and personal branding.

If you're just getting started, focus on creating original videos for a specific audience. Once you understand what your viewers want, choose monetization methods that naturally fit your niche.

TikTok can generate income directly in eligible cases, but it can also be much more valuable as a platform for building an audience, attracting customers, and growing a business beyond the app.
