How to Make Money on TikTok: 10 Ways to Earn from Views, Followers and Videos

Updated at November 2, 2026

Short Answer: If you build an engaged TikTok audience, you may be able to earn through creator programs, sponsored posts, affiliate sales, and other monetization tools.

AIf you are trying to understand how to make money on TikTok, it is easy to assume that views and followers automatically turn into cash. In reality, TikTok views are only the starting point. To turn attention into income, creators need to connect their content with a suitable monetization method.

A creator might earn directly through an eligible TikTok program, while another creator may use the same platform to promote affiliate products, attract clients, work with brands, sell products, or build an audience for an external business.

This means there is no single formula for making money on TikTok.

In this guide, we will look at 10 practical ways to turn TikTok content, views, and followers into potential income, along with tips for beginners who want to build a sustainable monetization strategy.

Can You Make Money on TikTok From Views?

Yes, but simply receiving views does not mean that every view automatically generates money.

Whether views can produce direct TikTok earnings depends on the monetization program available to your account, your eligibility, the type of content you publish, your location, and the applicable program rules.

Views can also create indirect income.

For example, a video may generate:

* Affiliate clicks

* Product sales
* Service inquiries
* Website visitors
* Brand opportunities
* Sponsorship requests
* UGC opportunities

So when thinking about how to make money from TikTok, it is useful to look at both direct and indirect monetization.

10 Ways to Make Money on TikTok

Here are 10 methods creators can explore.

1. Monetize Eligible Videos Through the Creator Rewards Program

For eligible creators in supported markets, TikTok's Creator Rewards Program can provide a direct monetization opportunity.

The program is designed around qualifying original content and has its own eligibility rules.

Requirements can involve factors such as:

* Age
* Followers
* Video views
* Account standing
* Original content
* Regional availability
* Other program conditions

If you want to use this method, check the current requirements inside TikTok because program rules can change.

It is also important not to confuse the Creator Rewards Program with the older TikTok Creator Fund.

TikTok Creator Fund vs. Creator Rewards Program

The TikTok Creator Fund was an earlier creator payment program and remains a popular search term.

TikTok has since moved toward newer monetization options, including the Creator Rewards Program in eligible markets.

This means older articles discussing Creator Fund payment rates may not accurately describe the current monetization environment.

If you are starting now, check the creator monetization features currently available to your account.

2. Turn Followers Into Affiliate Sales

Followers can become a source of income when they trust your recommendations.

Affiliate marketing allows creators to recommend products or services and receive a commission from qualifying actions or purchases.

The process can look like this:

Useful video → interested viewer → product recommendation → qualifying purchase → commission

The most effective affiliate content usually focuses on helping viewers.

For example, you could create:

* Product comparisons
* Tutorials
* Reviews
* Demonstrations
* "Best tools for..." videos
* Problem-solving videos

A technology creator could recommend software or accessories.

A fitness creator could discuss relevant equipment.

A beauty creator could demonstrate products.

The important part is relevance.

3. Get Paid for Brand Partnerships

If your account attracts a specific audience, brands may be interested in working with you.

A sponsorship can involve creating content around a company's product or service.

Possible campaigns include:

* Sponsored videos
* Product demonstrations
* Tutorials
* Brand integrations
* Reviews
* UGC-style advertisements
* Multi-video campaigns

Follower count is not the only factor.

Brands may also consider:

* Audience relevance
* Engagement
* Content quality
* Niche
* Location
* Previous campaign performance

A smaller account with a highly specific audience can therefore have opportunities that are different from those of a general entertainment account.

4. Use TikTok to Sell Your Own Products

If you already have a product business, TikTok can help you introduce those products to potential customers.

You can create videos showing:

* How the product is made
* How it works
* Different ways to use it
* Common customer questions
* Product features
* Behind-the-scenes content

Depending on your location and eligibility, TikTok may also provide shopping-related features that can connect content with products.

The availability of these tools varies by region.

The key is to create content that people actually want to watch rather than making every video feel like a traditional advertisement.

5. Sell Digital Products to Your Audience

A TikTok audience can also become interested in digital resources.

Digital products can include:

* Ebooks
* Templates
* Checklists
* Guides
* Planners

* Educational materials
* Spreadsheet tools
* Design assets
* Printable resources

For example, a creator who teaches social media marketing could sell a content planning template.

A study creator could offer a study planner.

A fitness educator could create a structured workout resource, provided it is appropriate and accurately presented.

The free TikTok content should provide genuine value. The digital product can then offer a more detailed solution.

6. Convert Followers Into Service Clients

If you have a professional skill, your TikTok audience can become a source of potential customers.

You could use TikTok to demonstrate your expertise in:

* SEO
* Writing
* Graphic design
* Video editing
* Web development
* Photography
* Tutoring
* Consulting
* Social media
* Translation

Instead of constantly saying "hire me," create useful videos that demonstrate what you know.

For example, an SEO professional could explain common ranking mistakes.

A graphic designer could show how poor typography affects a design.

A video editor could demonstrate how a simple edit changes a clip.

The content becomes a public demonstration of your skills.

7. Make Money Through UGC

UGC is another option for people who are good at producing short-form videos.

A UGC creator makes content that a company can potentially use for its own marketing.

The creator might produce:

* Product tutorials
* Demonstrations
* Testimonials
* Lifestyle clips
* Unboxing videos
* Voiceover videos
* Problem-and-solution content

You do not necessarily need a massive personal following for every UGC opportunity.

Companies may be more interested in whether you can create natural, engaging content that fits their product and target audience.

This makes UGC worth considering for creators who have strong video production skills.

8. Earn Through TikTok LIVE

LIVE content can provide another monetization opportunity for eligible creators.

Depending on your location and account, TikTok may provide features that allow viewers to interact with creators through virtual gifts and other LIVE tools.

A LIVE session can be based around:

* Gaming
* Q&A
* Education
* Entertainment
* Tutorials
* Product demonstrations
* Discussions

The strongest LIVE sessions usually give viewers a reason to stay.

Rather than going live without a topic, plan a simple structure.

For example:

Opening → main topic → audience questions → demonstration → closing

This can make the session easier for both the creator and the audience to follow.

9. Send TikTok Followers to Your Website

Your TikTok account can also act as a traffic source.

Instead of monetizing every follower directly on TikTok, you can use your videos to introduce people to your:

* Website
* Blog
* Online store
* Newsletter
* Community
* Service page
* Digital products

For example, you could publish a short video answering a common question and direct interested viewers to a longer guide.

Your website can then provide additional monetization opportunities such as advertising, affiliate marketing, products, or services.

This approach can also reduce dependence on a single social media platform.

10. Build a Long-Term Personal Brand

Followers become more valuable when they understand what your account represents.

Instead of creating unrelated videos simply because they might go viral, build a recognizable subject area.

Your personal brand could focus on:

* Gaming
* Technology
* Education
* Fitness
* Cooking
* Productivity
* Career advice
* Business
* Travel
* Entertainment

Over time, your audience can become interested in several things you offer.

That can create opportunities for sponsorships, products, affiliate marketing, services, and other business models.

How to Make Money on TikTok Videos

If you want to monetize videos, start by asking one question:

What value does this video provide to the viewer?

A video can educate, entertain, demonstrate, compare, explain, or solve a problem.

Then connect that value with an appropriate monetization method.

For example:

Content Type | Possible Monetization

Product tutorial | Affiliate marketing
Educational video | Digital product
Professional tips | Services
Product demonstration | Sponsorship or UGC
Entertainment | Brand partnerships
Business advice | Consulting
Gaming content | Sponsorships or affiliate products
Website-focused content | Traffic and advertising

This approach creates a logical relationship between content and income.

How Do You Make Money on TikTok With Followers?

Followers can be valuable because they already chose to follow your content.

But follower count alone does not determine income.

A creator with a smaller audience may have strong monetization potential if the audience is highly relevant.

For example, imagine two accounts.

One has 100,000 followers interested in general entertainment.

Another has 10,000 followers consisting mostly of people interested in a specific professional software product.

The second account could potentially be attractive to companies selling that software because the audience has a clear commercial interest.

This is why audience relevance is important.

How to Make Money Off TikTok Without Going Viral

You do not need every video to become a viral hit.

Instead, focus on producing content that consistently reaches the right people.

Search-friendly videos can be particularly useful for this.

For example:

* "How to edit videos on your phone"
* "Best tools for beginner designers"
* "How to create a website"
* "How to start affiliate marketing"
* "How to use a specific software tool"

These topics can attract viewers who already have a specific question or need.

A smaller number of highly relevant viewers can sometimes be more useful than a large number of viewers who have no interest in your monetization offer.

How to Get Monetized on TikTok

If you are specifically interested in TikTok's own monetization programs, check the current options available to your account.

The process generally involves:

1. Creating an eligible account.
2. Following TikTok's policies.
3. Publishing original content.
4. Building an audience.
5. Meeting the applicable requirements.
6. Checking the monetization section in your account.
7. Applying for or activating available programs.

The exact requirements can differ between monetization features and countries.

Do not assume that requirements listed for one program automatically apply to another.

How Many Followers Do You Need to Make Money on TikTok?

There is no single follower number that guarantees income.

Different monetization methods have different requirements.

Some TikTok features may have minimum eligibility thresholds.

Other methods, such as affiliate marketing, UGC, services, and business lead generation, can potentially be explored with smaller audiences.

For this reason, waiting until you reach a huge follower count is not always necessary.

You can begin learning how monetization works while your audience is still growing.

How Much Can You Make on TikTok?

TikTok income varies significantly between creators.

Factors can include:

* Number of qualifying views
* Audience location
* Niche
* Engagement
* Monetization method
* Brand partnerships
* Affiliate conversion
* Product sales
* Service pricing
* Customer value

For example, a creator earning through freelance services might generate income from only a few clients.

An affiliate creator may earn based on conversions.

A sponsored creator may negotiate campaign rates with brands.

A creator using a TikTok monetization program may receive rewards according to that program's rules.

Therefore, there is no universal "TikTok salary."

TikTok Creator Rewards Program in 2026

The Creator Rewards Program is one of the creator monetization options that eligible creators in supported markets can explore.

If you are interested in the program, pay attention to the current rules around:

* Eligibility
* Original content
* Video requirements
* Account status
* Qualifying views
* Regional availability

TikTok can change program terms, so information published several years ago may not reflect the current system.

The safest approach is to review the current information available inside your account.

Creator Rewards Program in the Philippines

If you are located in the Philippines and searching for the Creator Rewards Program in the Philippines, first check whether the program is currently available to your account.

TikTok monetization can differ by country.

Even if a creator in another market can access a particular feature, that does not automatically mean the same feature is available in the Philippines.

Creators can also explore other income sources, including:

* Affiliate marketing
* Brand partnerships
* UGC
* Services
* Digital products
* Business promotion
* LIVE features where eligible

Can You Make Money on TikTok Without Showing Your Face?

Yes.

There are many content formats that do not require you to appear on camera.

Examples include:

Screen Recordings

Useful for software, apps, websites, and tutorials.

Voiceovers

You can explain a topic while showing relevant footage or graphics.

Product Demonstrations

Show the product without necessarily showing yourself.

Gaming Videos

Gameplay can be combined with commentary or captions.

Educational Graphics

Simple visuals can explain concepts without a talking head.

Hands-Only Videos

Useful for cooking, crafts, drawing, products, and demonstrations.

The format should match the content and audience.

How to Turn TikTok Views Into Customers

Views are attention.

Customers are a business result.

To connect the two, create a simple path:

Video → Profile → Relevant Offer → Customer

For example, a web designer could post a video explaining why slow websites lose visitors.

The profile could then explain the web design service.

Someone who watches the video and recognizes the same problem on their own website may become a potential customer.

This is much more useful than simply trying to collect views without a clear business purpose.

How to Turn Followers Into Repeat Customers

If you already have an audience, do not focus only on acquiring new followers.

Give existing followers reasons to return.

You can:

* Answer their questions
* Create series-based content
* Provide regular tutorials
* Share new products
* Offer useful resources
* Respond to comments
* Build a recognizable content format

Trust develops when people repeatedly receive useful content from the same creator.

That trust can eventually support appropriate monetization opportunities.

Tips for Making More Money on TikTok

Choose a Clear Niche

A focused topic makes your account easier to understand.

Create Content Around Real Problems

Problem-solving videos often give viewers a reason to watch.

Avoid Constant Selling

A useful content-to-promotion balance can make an account more enjoyable to follow.

Make Your Profile Clear

Tell visitors what your account is about and what they can expect.

Track Conversions

If you are selling something, measure actual results rather than looking only at views.

Experiment With Formats

Try tutorials, comparisons, stories, demonstrations, FAQs, and other formats.

Build Multiple Revenue Streams Slowly

Once one method starts working, consider adding another related income source.

Common TikTok Monetization Mistakes

Assuming Views Equal Income

Views are not automatically payments.

Buying Followers

Artificial numbers do not create a genuine audience.

Promoting Unrelated Products

An irrelevant promotion can reduce audience trust.

Copying Other Creators

Create original content instead of simply reproducing another creator's videos.

Making Unrealistic Earnings Claims

There is no guaranteed amount of money you will make from a specific number of followers or views.

Ignoring TikTok Rules

Violating platform policies can affect your ability to use monetization features.
